Introducing

THE ENCROACHING ECONOMIC POLICE STATE

The Economic Police State is made up of the following components:

- Economic/Financial Apparatus
- Legal Apparatus
- Military Apparatus

All three of these components are supported by "auxiliary" mechanisms or tools

Most of the Agenda

All of the Apparatus and Tools

are hidden In Plain Sight

The Agenda...

"The powers of financial capitalism have another farreaching aim, nothing less than to create a world system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world as a whole...

... I know of the operations of the network because I have studied it for twenty years and was permitted for two years, in the early 1960s, to examine its papers and secret records..."

Caroll Quigley, Tragedy and Hope, 1966

ECONOMIC

APPARATUS:

5 Main Elements

Element 1: Central Banks

The installation of central banking systems in countries around the world

Activities are coordinated by the Bank of International Settlements (BIS)

BIS is a "bank for central banks" which "fosters international monetary and financial cooperation . . . in pursuit of [global] monetary and financial stability."

Open Market Operations is the primary tool each central bank uses to manage monetary policy. It provides the venue for the sale or purchase of government-backed securities, allowing central banks to expand or contract reserves.

Reserves ultimately influence a country's money supply.

Open Market activities are "coordinated" by the BIS.

Element 2: Bretton Woods System

Created to rebuild the international economic system after WW II, setting in place a system of rules, institutions, and procedures to regulate the international monetary system.

The IMF and the World Bank Group were formed under the umbrella of the United Nations established through Bretton Woods.

The U.S. and other "member" nations make periodic contributions to the IMF and World Bank Group in order that "financial assistance might be provided to low income members". This assistance comes in the form of loans, from which contributing members ostensibly derive "investment income."

According to a 2003 report for the Carnegie Mellon Gailliot Center for Public Policy, the U.S. supplied $27 billion in funds at an annual cost to taxpayers of $1.9 billion. These expenditures do not appear in the Federal Budget.

Element 3: Economic Hit Men

"Economic hit men are highly paid professionals who cheat countries around the globe out of trillions of dollars. . .

They funnel money from the World Bank, the US Agency for International Development (USAID), and other foreign "aid" organizations into the coffers of huge corporations and the pockets of a few wealthy families who control the planet's natural resources...

Their tools include fraudulent financial reports, rigged elections, payoffs, extortion, sex and murder. They play a game as old as empire, but one that has taken on new and terrifying dimensions during this time of globalization.

I should know; I was an economic hit man". John Perkins, Confessions of an Economic Hit Man

More Economic Hit Men

"It must not be felt that these heads of the world's chief central banks were themselves substantive powers in world finance...

The substantive financial powers of the world were in the hands of these investment bankers (also called 'international' or 'merchant' bankers) who remained largely behind the scenes in their own unincorporated private banks. These found a system of international cooperation and national dominance which was more private, more powerful, and more secretive than that of their agents in the central banks. This dominance of investment bankers was based on their control over the flows of credit and investment funds in their own countries and throughout the world.

They could dominate the financial and industrial systems of their countries by their influence over the flow of current funds through bank loans, the discount rate, and the rediscounting of commercial debts; they could dominate governments by their own control over government loans and the play of the international exchanges. . ." Caroll Quigley, Tragedy and Hope, 1966

Element 4: WAR AND GLOBALIZATION

War and globalization are symptoms of the same problem . . .

And both are "rackets" . . .

"There is another largely unrecorded history and it tells a story quite different than our sanitized textbooks. It tells a story of the deliberate creation of war, the knowing finance of revolution to change governments . . out of war come opportunities for profit. . .conflict can be used for profit." Antony Sutton. America's Secret Establishment, 1982

"War is conducted for the benefit of the very few, at the expense of the very many. . . Out of war a few people make huge fortunes." Major General Smedley Butler, War is a Racket, 1935

"Globalization . . .has not led to prosperity for any developing nation . . .There is occasional evidence that this result is precisely what the authors of globalization intended." Chalmers Johnson, Sorrows of Empire, 2004

Element 5: Wall Street

Wall Street and the financial establishment (represented by the investment bankers Carroll Quigley wrote about) now function in the "developed world" in a manner very similar to the way the IMF has functioned in the developing world.

Key piece of evidence: The debt-rating agencies employed by Wall Street have not been interested in debt per se. What they ARE interested in is whether policy makers obey orders by implementing "austerity measures."

The extreme concentration of wealth and power helped create a political/regulatory environment through which the financial economy can be heavily manipulated by a relative handful of players.

The financial economy is separate from the REAL economy.

The financial economy is where investment bankers and financiers find ways to generate additional layers of profits and/or create money as loans which are secured by the assets and productive ability of the Real economy

The financial economy has the ability to:

- Trigger the bankruptcy of REAL economy companies
- Trigger foreclosures
- Move the value of stocks at will
- Paralyze credit
- Decimate the real economy

Manipulation of the financial economy has been accomplished over many centuries through creditdriven tools:

--- derivatives instruments--- speculation and--- currency manipulation

These credit-driven tools create market sector bubbles.

When bubbles collapse, the real economy is decimated.

With each "correction" real economy wealth funnels into the hands of the investor class, and the financial economy. The entire world is now "between a rock and a hard place"

• For Example, the U.S. total public and private debt (@ $53 trillion) outstrips our money supply (@ $14 trillion using estimated M3 figures) - by a factor of nearly 4 to 1.

 Government must borrow from the banking system in order to bail out the banking system. Why? So that the money creation chain can continue. This method of money creation is why "credit is the lifeblood of the economy."

 Even worse, the government must borrow from the banking system to "provide for the public welfare"

• Debt will explode, because our money is essentially created by the financial economy when government and the people take out loans.

"There is no subtler, no surer means of overturning the existing basis of society than to debauch the currency. The process engages all the hidden forces of economic law on the side of destruction, and does it in a manner which only one man in a million is able to diagnose." John Maynard Keynes

N.B. The ONLY way to debauch the currency is to change it from evidence of wealth to evidence of debt: Money "owed" versus Money "owned". At all levels of government, in all parts of the world with central banking systems, the result will be:

• Escalating increases in income taxes, property taxes and sales taxes, user fees, license fees, etc

 Increased bankruptcies – in turn resulting in wide spread fire sales of depressed assets

Increased privatization and sell-off of public assets . . .

 And over the long term, massive slashing of public expenditures . . . with the exception of defense, which is needed to enforce unpopular "austerity measures" "The real news is this:

The planet is being remade. Entire nations are withering, entire neighborhoods are dying, and for millions of people left behind, the future will not exist in any meaningful way...

[BUT] For every householder trapped in a suddenly insupportable monthly mortgage payment, in a dying neighborhood, in a shrinking economy... there is another householder living debt-free in a burgeoning township, in a booming economy, sporting a portfolio bulging with stocks picked up for pennies on the dollar ..."

Dick Young, Investment Advisor, The Investor Place

"If the American people ever allow the banks to control the issuance of their currency, first by inflation and then by deflation, the banks and corporations that will grow up around them will deprive the people of all property until their children wake up homeless on the continent their fathers occupied. . . I sincerely believe the banking institutions are more dangerous to liberty than standing armies."

Thomas Jefferson

LEGAL

APPARATUS:

4 Main Elements

Element 1: FREE TRADE AGREEMENTS

- Nothing more than investment agreements which favor the investment class
- Includes GATT, WTO, the "TRIPS" Agreement, NAFTA, CAFTA and so forth
- Stalled, but waiting in the wings: the FTAA
- In the interim, "free" trade/investment agreements are being made with individual countries such as Columbia and Peru
- All contain economic incentives as well as punishment for failure to adhere to rules that serve to undermine the real economy, workers and the environment while serving the needs of the financial elite

Two important pacts developed through the Uruguay Round were delivered in 1995 to the WTO to enforce

 The TRIPS Agreement which criminalized seed saving and seed sharing, and allowed for the patenting of life forms

 The Agreement on Agriculture which legalized the dumping of genetically engineered foods on countries and criminalized actions to protect local, organic food systems.

RECALL...

There was no crisis in international commerce between 1986 and 1994, and therefore no need to create the WTO.

AND...

The WTO has explicit authority under international law to decide which local and national laws are in violation of its trade rules.

END RESULT:

The Uruguay Round of GATT in 1994 together with the creation of the WTO institutionalized and legalized corporate growth based on theft of nature and workers.

Element 2: The United Nations

The organizational chart of the UN shows an amalgam of:

–"Departments and offices" including Economic and Social Affairs, Peacekeeping Operations, etc.

 "Specialized Agencies" including the WHO, FAO, UNESCO, The World Bank Group, the IMF, the World Intellectual Property Organization

-"Related Organizations" including the WTO, and the IAEA

 Subsidiary bodies including peacekeeping operations and missions, and a counter-terrorism committee

And more, many of which have un-named sub-agencies and programs

Unmentioned in the chart is the UN Biospheres program which concerns itself with land management and "sustainable" development.

– 47 UNESCO registered World Biosphere Reserves

20 World Heritage Sites in the United States

 Over 73,000,000 acres within the United States are part of the "Biospheres Program"

"Through these programs the United States has agreed to limit our right of sovereignty over these lands. The problem is not in the noble-appearing goals of these programs . . . "...but in their mandates which would subvert our Constitutional protections and republican form of government if fully implemented.

"For example, the U.S. Man and Biosphere program is based on a communal-feudal concept of land tenure where "stakeholders" (including non-residents and nongovernmental organizations - NGO's) get to participate in deciding how private as well as public land is used.

"The USMAB is structured around the idea of private/public "partnerships" where non-elected, unaccountable commissions, agencies or councils "represent" the people's will and implement and enforce land use regulations across jurisdictional boundaries..."

Michael S. Coffman, Ph.D. "Who Owns Our Biospheres and World Heritage Sites?"

Interestingly...

By its own account, the World Wildlife Fund, together with the World Bank, is "working with key partners toward a state of the world's forests in which representative, well-managed protected forest areas - along with responsibly managed forests outside protected areas - will support environmental values while serving human and economic needs by midcentury."

By its own account, the World Bank is the largest financier of biodiversity

Small farm activist Derry Brownfield says the goal of the World Bank has been the insistence on collateralization of loans with land (they give you the money, you give them the Amazon). Like the Federal Reserve, the World Bank can create a limitless supply of money they will then barter with debtor nations such as the U.S. in a scheme to monetize land (by creating loans as money, using land as collateral).

Consider...

Originally U.S. Citizens had "alloidial title" to their property, meaning it was owned free and without obligation of vassalage or fealty, held absolutely in one's own right.

Today, none of us has alloidial title to our property.

As per 1933 Senate Document No. 43, from the first session of the 73rd Congress:

"The ownership of all property is in the State; individual so-called 'ownership' is only by virtue of government, i.e., law, amounting to mere user; and use must be in accordance with law and subordinate to the necessities of the State."

Essentially . . .

The UN contributes to the usurpation of personal property rights through Biosphere and other programs....

It is able to exert control over entire economies through the World Bank Group and IMF via structural adjustment programs, through its "related organization" the WTO and other means including promotion of public/private partnerships . . .

It is able to exert control over economic sectors such as agriculture, medicine, food and more through agencies such as the World Health Organization and the Food and Agriculture Organization who promote the interests of agribusiness and big pharma...

The net effect is to promote and legally reinforce the interests of big business over the rights and interests of average citizens.

Element 3: The "New Legal Regime"

 Also referred to by legal scholars as "the second constitution" of the United States

 Created through the Reconstruction Amendments which share the "police powers" phrase: "Congress shall have the power to enforce by appropriate legislation"

• Established two classes of citizens, federal and state, and gave corporations person-hood.

 Allowed the Supreme Court to act as a "super legislature" as they filtered decisions through the "new legal regime"

 Invited Congress to extend federal jurisdiction through legislation, granted by the "police powers" phrase

Element 4: Administrative Law

 Administrative law is that body of law which governs the activities of the administrative agencies of government

 In the U.S. many but not all of these agencies are organized under the Executive Branch of government.

 Administrative law can include rulemaking and legislation, adjudication, or the enforcement of a specific regulatory agenda covering such areas as police law, international trade, agriculture, the environment, taxation, manufacturing and more

• It is considered a branch of public law.
Administrative Law Going Global

 Administrative Law has expanded greatly around the globe during the twentieth century

 Law itself is becoming globalized, and business/administrative law is globalizing fastest of all

U.S. Administrative Law is now made through the Code of Regulations via the Federal Register

The Federal Register (created in 1935) is the daily publication for final rules, proposed new rules, and notices of the various federal agencies and organizations - together with presidential executive orders and proclamations

Theoretically, the daily notice and comment process allows public participation but in practice rules are finalized without regard to public feedback.

The final rules are then reorganized by topic or subject matter and re-published in the Code of Federal Regulations, becoming part of administrative law.

Executive orders are now "editorially" codified by the Office of Federal Regulations despite past lessons

- FDR claimed emergency war powers in order to "wage war" against the depression, issuing a series of proclamations and executive orders to jump start that "war". Key phrases in the Emergency Bank Act of 1933 in effect made American citizens "enemies of the state".
- In 1973 the Church Committee found that the U.S. had been in a state of declared National Emergency since 1933. The 1976 National Emergency Termination Act aimed to dilute a President's power to declare or extend national emergencies but left loopholes
- For example, JFK signed 11 Executive Orders including 10998, which had to do with government seizure of public and private food supplies and resources, plus farms and farm equipment in the event of a national emergency. The other 10 orders were along the same lines. In 1994, Bill Clinton signed Executive Order 12919, incorporating all 11 of those orders signed by JFK.

But . . .

... does not the Constitution give Congress the power to "make all laws?" "Today, our regulatory and administrative laws are a stacked deck, granting corporations legal clout while disadvantaging peoples, communities and nature..."

MILITARY

APPARATUS

3 Main Elements

Element 1: NATO and the United Nations

NATO was formed under Chapter VIII of the U.N. Charter.

Stated purpose is to provide for the common security of members through economic, scientific, political and military cooperation and consultation.

As of September 2006, some 12,000 U.S. Soldiers stationed in Afghanistan were under NATO – NOT U.S. - control.

As of same date a total of approximately 30,000 troops from member countries were expected to serve under NATO in Afghanistan

- According to its website, the United Nations Department of Peacekeeping Operations alone has more than 100,000 troops and personnel deployed to 16 peace missions around the world.
- The number of troops and other peacekeepers serving under the UN and Nato has "entered a phase of rapid growth" since 2000. (2007 Annual Review of Global Peace Operations. NYU)
- Increased sex crimes and trafficking occur around military bases, including NATO and UN operations. A 2004 report by Amnesty International found that UN and NATO troops stationed in the Kosovo region used trafficked women and girls for sex and some were involved in trafficking itself.

Element 2:

FEMA, Detention camps and The Department of Homeland Security -- FEMA was created in 1979 by Executive Orders 12127 and 12148 merging many of the separate disaster related responsibilities of numerous existing agencies into the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Civil defense responsibilities were also transferred to FEMA from DOD's Defense Civil Preparedness Agency.

-- FEMA was given Cabinet level position in 1993 by Clinton

-- In 2003 FEMA became part of the Department of Homeland Security's Emergency Preparedness and Response Directorate.

MainCore database – another FEMA project?

---First reported by Christopher Ketchum in May 2008 and Tim Shorrock in July 2008.

---Lists a reported 8 million Americans as "potential threats".

----Main Core believed to have originated with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in 1982, following Ronald Reagan's Continuity of Operations outlined in two presidential directives – after which Rex84 was developed as a test for Continuity of Government [COG]. According to Geopolitical Monitor, FEMA has been renovating and constructing new detention camps throughout the country "for some time".

In January 2006, Homeland Security awarded KBR a contract worth up to $385 million to provide for . . .

----The establishment of temporary detention and processing capabilities

---And the development of a plan to react to a national emergency, such as a natural disaster.

The Department of Homeland Security recombines the responsibilities of several government agencies and entities including FEMA

Mission: " to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, reduce America's vulnerability to terrorism, and minimize the damage and recover from attacks that do occur" as well as assume responsibility for preparedness, response, and recovery to natural disasters.

Not included under the Dept of Homeland Security: the CIA, FBI, NSA, DOD and other agencies which might play a role in certain aspects of homeland security In 2003, Homeland Security authorized a 10 year strategic plan codenamed Endgame which many contend extends the Rex 84 "readiness exercise" developed in 1984 as a test for "Continuity of Government" [COG] in the event of some future national emergency.

Officially, Endgame provides 100% immigration enforcement and removal of all removable aliens and "potential terrorists" who are to be first processed through detention camps.

NB:

Prior to NAFTA, migrant farm workers moved freely across U.S. border and back; now they must sneak over as "illegal aliens" in order to work for pennies on the dollar (or worse). At the same time, small farmers of Central and South America become both victims and enablers of the drug trade because of economic fallout of NAFTA, etc.

Question: Could the illegal immigration crisis and drug wars be "created conflicts" ala Perkins, Sutton et al - or merely unintended consequences of bad policy? Among initiatives and resources devoted to "Endgame":

---Army's "civilian inmate labor program". Army Regulation 210-35, January 14, 2005 provides guidance for establishment and management of civilian inmate labor programs on Army installations, along with guidance on establishment of prison camps on Army installations .

---A 2006 Senate immigration bill included $2.6 billion to build detention facilities.

---The "John Warner Defense Authorization Act of 2007" amended Posse Comitatus and The Insurrection Act to allow the Federal government to unilaterally take control of state National Guards and position Federal troops anywhere in the country during a 'public emergency'

----H. R. 645, proposed January 2009 is designed "to direct the Secretary of Homeland Security to establish national emergency centers on military installations." A Sept. 30, 2008 in The Army Times revealed that as of October 2008, troop deployments will include 'Homeland' duty under the command of NORTHCOM.

The mission is "an on-call federal response force for natural or man-made emergencies and disasters, including terrorist attacks" – and may become a permanent part of active duty.

Question . . .

What happened to the National Guard?

Element 3:

EXPANSION OF MILITARY APPARATUS

THROUGH

CIVILIAN SECTOR

Merging of the civilian sector with the military:

For example, Chicago has five military academies, nearly three dozen smaller Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps programs within existing high schools, and numerous middle school Junior ROTC programs Militarizing the National Guard

Then there's the National Guard - which falls under the control of respective states. It was created to assist states in times of local emergencies like floods, earthquakes and other disasters, and to protect the country as a whole in time of federal emergencies. BUT...

... Instead our "weekend warriors" are now being called up for active duty. Since Sept. 11, more than 210,000 of the Guard's 330,000 soldiers have been called to serve in Iraq, and elsewhere.

Formation of public/private partnerships between the private sector and the military.

For example, the increased use of mercenaries through Blackwater (renamed Xe), Dyncorp, and Triple Canopy, with which the State Dept has contracts for "world personal protective services".

And InfraGard - an FBI "public-private partnership" begun in 1996 in the Cleveland, Ohio, Field Office. By early 2008 there were 86 chapters and 23,000 InfraGard members in various businesses involved in critical infrastructure in the United States. Some InfraGard members stated that - in the event of martial law being declared in the United States - they would have the right to "shoot to kill". (Matthew Rothschild, The Progressive) Increased militarization of local police - the following per Paul Craig Roberts

• Today, 17,000 local police forces are equipped with Blackhawk helicopters, machine guns, grenade launchers, battering rams, explosives, chemical sprays, body armor, night vision, rappelling gear and armored vehicles. Some have tanks.

• "Disaster drills" utilizing military equipment have been run in cities throughout the U.S.

 Increased use of Swat teams - elite tactical units in American police departments trained to perform highrisk operations that fall outside of the abilities of regular patrol officers. In recent years, American police forces have called out SWAT teams 40,000 or more times annually - serving routine warrants to people who posed no danger to the police or to the public.

Militarization of local police services through Federal Programs:

For example, Kentucky's Lexington Police Department contracted Blackwater Security International to provide what's described as homeland security training.

AND . . . in January 2009 the U.S. Conference of Mayors assembled a wish list of "Main Street economic stimulus" items including . . .

- $125,000 for an armored vehicle and $200,000 for a "mobile command vehicle" (Frisco, Tx)

-$56,000 for military grade carbines (Arlington Tx)

- A request for sub-atomic machine guns, an armored vehicle, etc (Gary, In)

"Government is not reason; it is not eloquence, it is force! Like fire it is a dangerous servant and a fearful master."

George Washington

THE TOOLS

(or Supportive Mechanisms)

6 Main Elements

Element 1: CODEX

Set up in 1962 by a group of businessmen as a joint program of the WHO and FAO, to establish a "harmonized trade standard".

Stated objective: "TO REGULATE EVERYTHING FROM FARM TO FORK".

"Voluntary" Codex recommendations enforced through language embedded in the WTO, NAFTA, CAFTA etc.

Center for Food Safety & Applied Nutrition at the FDA states that: "Failure to reach a consistent, harmonized set of laws, regulations and standards within the free trade agreements and the World Trade Organization Agreements can result in considerable economic repercussions."

Element 2: REGIONALIZATION

- The European Union
- The North American Union and the Security and Prosperity Program
- The Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation

Element 3: Public/Private Partnerships

Such "partnerships" enables government and business to coown a former public asset in order to make profits, with associated fee structures locking out the disadvantaged and squeezing the middle class. Here's how it works under our current system of money creation:

"Every project begins in a place--usually a small locality where people live. . . [who have no] money to pay for the project . . . Often, they don't even know they need the project but someone with a much more global scope has put some numbers together [to create a "financial model" ala John Perkins]. . . Any project needing money can be drawn as a line beginning at the local area in need of the capital, back to the investment banker, who can be depicted as a circle with a series of lines branching out from his center. . .connect[ing] to the banker's sources of funds for investment. . . most of these sources of funds are secret." (Follow the Yellow Brick Road, Linda Minor)

In the U.S. public/private partnerships facilitated by:

#1. The Comprehensive Annual Financial Reporting (CAFR) System created in the 40's by a group of businessmen and mandated for all local governmental entities in 1981.

*The CAFR system sets up a government entity as a corporation through the establishment of "enterprise funds". *Major profit-makers for these funds are the defense industry, oil, financials and big pharma (inc. derivatives products).

*Researchers estimate that as much as 2/3's of government revenues may come from public/private partnerships created through enterprise funds.

#2. 1992 Executive Order No. 12803 which dealt with "Infrastructure Privatization". It erased existing Federal roadblocks preventing cities and states from leasing or selling public assets to private investors and corporations. In 2005, the controversial Kelo v. New London case took privatization even further when the Supreme Court ruled that private property can be seized and handed over to politically connected private developers so long as the government treasury might benefit.

Was the Court relying on Senate Doc. No. 43 of the 73rd Congress:

"The ownership of all property is in the State; individual so-called 'ownership' is only by virtue of government, i.e., law, amounting to mere user; and use must be in accordance with law and subordinate to the necessities of the State."

The Selling of America

"Roads and bridges built by U.S. taxpayers are starting to be sold off. . .Few people know that the tolls from the U.S. side of the tunnel between Detroit and Windsor, Canada, go to a subsidiary of an Australian company — which also owns a bridge in Alabama." From a 2006 USA Today article Foreign companies Buying U.S. Roads and Bridges

"Now, investment bankers worldwide are rushing to benefit from the huge fees they know will be realized as PPP projects in the United States privatize a wide range of public infrastructure, including highways, schools, water departments, and prisons." Jerome Corsi. The Late Great USA

Privatization and Weaponization of Space

Space Command's policy statement "Vision 2020" reads in part:

"Dominating the space dimension of military operations to protect U.S. National interests and investment. . .

"The globalization of the world economy will also continue, with a widening between "haves" and "have-nots"...

"Global partnerships augments military space capabilities through leveraging of civil, commercial, and international space systems . . . The most evident benefit of Global Partnership will be decreased pressure on existing military infrastructure and operations, and reduced maintenance costs by off loading to civil and commercial providers."

Privatizing Intelligence Agencies

– In 2006 the U.S. paid out $42 billion of its $60 billion budget to private contractors to handle foreign and domestic spying and surveillance activities with the number of contract employees now exceeding the CIA's full-time workforce of 17,500....

The industrial base of contractors seeking to supply the NSA with data and information technology grew from 144 companies in 2001 to more than 5,400 in 2006...

– Almost the entire workforce of the National Reconnaissance Office (NRO) – which is the agency in charge of launching and maintaining the nation's photo reconnaissance and eavesdropping satellites - is composed of contract employees working for [private] companies . . . "

Tim Shorrock. Spies for Hire

Privatization Promoted through USAID . . .

 USAID is an independent federal agency created by Executive Order in 1961

– Purpose was "to extend a helping hand to those people overseas struggling to make a better life, recover from a disaster or striving to live in a free and democratic country."

– New program is The Global Development Alliance (GDA), "an innovative public-private alliance model for improving social and economic conditions in developing countries. The GDA combines the assets and experience of strategic partners, leveraging their capital and investments, creativity and access to markets to solve complex problems facing government, business, and communities."
Privatization Sponsored by the United Nations

The UN's Committee on Economic Cooperation and Integration (CECI) "promotes public/private partnerships for Domestic and Foreign investment as well as intellectual property rights....

"... The main objective of CECI in this area is to increase the expertise of governments to identify, negotiate, manage and implement successful public-private partnership projects (PPP) projects...

"This will be done through exchange of knowledge and experiences of PPPs (public/private partnerships) by member States, including experts from public and private sector . . ." "I hope we shall crush in its birth the aristocracy of our moneyed corporations, which dare already to challenge our government to a trial of strength, and bid defiance to the laws of our country."

Thomas Jefferson

Element 4: Control of Information = Controlled populations

Collection of comprehensive institutional and personal information, through various data mining techniques including RFID chips installed in bar codes, passports, drivers licenses, I-passes. Also microphones and tracking devices installed in cell phones, surveillance cameras and more.

When government regulations prohibit certain data mining activities, government agencies contract with private business for desired assistance.

The mined information can be and is used to control groups and individuals.

Control of information/populations also through...

- Concentrated ownership of media, including the publishing and public relations industries, and through creation of government propaganda machinery
- Compartmentalization of information
- Outright denial of certain information to all those outside "need-to-know" policy-making levels
- Establishment of national and international policy independent of the established Government, using secret and semi-secret societies such as the Council on Foreign Relations and the Bilderberg Group and use of tax exempt foundations and think tanks to promote those policies

In the early 1950's the Cox Committee followed by the Reece Committee were set up to study the financial and political impact of tax exempt foundations. Reece Committee Legal council Rene Wormser wrote in his book Foundations :

"Foundation activity has nowhere had a greater impact than in the field of foreign affairs. It has conquered public opinion and has largely established the international-political goals of our country...

It would be difficult to find a single foundation-supported organization of any substance which has not favored the United Nations or similar global schemes; fantastically heavy foreign aid at the burdensome expense of the taxpayer; meddling in the colonial affairs of other nations; and American military commitments over the globe. This was comparatively easy to accomplish because there was no organized or foundation-supported opposition . . ." "More than fifty years ago the Morgan firm decided to infiltrate the Left-wing political movements in the United States. This was relatively easy to do, since these groups were starved for funds and eager for a voice to reach the people. Wall Street supplied both [through financing tax exempt foundations]....The purpose was not to destroy ... or take over but was really threefold:

(1) to keep informed about the thinking of Left-wing or liberal groups;

(2) to provide them with a mouthpiece so that they could "blow off steam," and

(3) to have a final veto on their publicity and possibly on their actions, if they ever went 'radical' . . . "

Carroll Quigley, Tragedy and Hope

Created conflict/opposition to control information and populations...

"... More effective than outright censorship is use of the left-right political spectrum to neutralize unwelcome facts and ideas or just condition citizens to think along certain lines... The discussion and the funding is ALWAYS towards more state power, use of state power and away from individual rights.

By and large control of information has been successful. The intellectual world is still locked in a phony verbal battle between "left" and "right", whereas the real struggle is the battle between individual freedom and the encroaching power of the absolute state....

The conflict between the two controlled groups keeps an apparent informational conflict alive. Unwelcome facts that fall into neither camp can be effectively neutralized because they will incur the wrath of both "right" AND "left." . . . in brief, any publication which points up the fallacy of the Left-Right dichotomy is ignored. . .and citizens keep trouping to the polling booth in the belief they have a choice. . ."

Antony Sutton. America's Secret Establishments (c1983)

Element 5: Control of the Monetary system

Control of populations also occurs as a result of private control over the money supply, availability of credit, and the worth of money, through policy decisions made outside of the official Government (using privately owned commercial and central banks along with the "coordinating efforts" of the Bank of International Settlements and the IMF).

Internal discussions and decisions must be kept private so that "economic downturns" may occur - and a rebalancing of the system can take place.

"There has never been devised by any man a plan more specious by which labor could be robbed of the fruits of toil than the banking system . . .
